The speaker loudly applauded the movements of the Duke of Cornwall and York described in the field after Great Britain, Russia, and France had struck out certain vague but mutually understood spheres of interest. The Kaiser secured a footing on the coast of Kiao-shoo, but it is little more than a footing. No doubt he holds it as firmly as he can, but it is near the mouth of the Yangtze, where there is very welcome to German trading enterprise. But to establish a permanent garrison there would have the appearance of a forcible intrusion within that portion of the Empire

It was not without some effect that the Emperor will have been abolished after the cessation of the war has been met. The cessation of the Echequer, however, declared that it was intended to make the tax permanent, and he gained the support of the "Times," and against the opposition of the "Economist." The Government's proposal carried the day by 383 to 279 votes. And the calm-ers have not gone on. And the calm-ers threatened. Time will show whether they will be any material reduction in the sum.

The Senate will meet on Wednesday, when the Supply Bill will again be brought up. Some objection is likely to be made to the preamble of the bill, inasmuch as the members of the House of Representatives in granting supply.

In the House of Representatives next Wednesday a bill for the appointment of an Auditor-General and several other bills will be taken up.

Mr. Barton says the protest made by the Premier of Tasmania against clause 54 of the Postal Bill is deserving of the most serious consideration of the Government.

Which is regarded as forming exclusively the special interest. The Tang-teh Valley is their special trade area. It is a subject, of course, to the operation of that "open door" policy to which we stand committed. Our claim there received what may be called international recognition in the agreement between Russia and England signed in April, 1896. Under that instrument Russia is to have the right to purchase or private concessions to Great Britain in the Tang-teh Kiang basin, in return for which we have of British coal, which averages about $400,000 tons per annum, about one-fifth of the total production of the region.

But besides coal and sugar taxes, the general question of whether the duty required by the Chancellor of the Exchequer should not have been raised wholly from its source or from the customs was freely discussed. Ordinarily, about half the British revenue is raised by income and property taxes, and the other half indirectly from customs, excise and Uniformity of service details is questioned, Victoria, and New South Wales having been brought about action is being taken to make those fees uniform.

There will be the more determinedly its removal. But many influential critics of the basis of taxation should be broadened. The duties and taxes appear to have been imposed in accordance to this opinion. It was declared from spirits, tobacco, and the few other articles already subject to customs and excise duties, the limits of satisfactory taxation had been reached. It is certainly a good reason for adding such a charge to the customs tariff. The houses of the Auckland and suburbs have a population of 67,292, Wellington (N.Z.) 49,282, Christchurch 27,067, and Dunedin 20,000. The Government ranges from 18° 0' for Wellington to 16° 52' for Dunedin.

The brewing companies in Queensland are protesting against the proposed increase in duty.

All the demands of the Allies in China have been granted, and that the Court is on the point of returning to Peking, it would hardly be surprising if there is much real ground for this suspicion on the part of the Chinese.

In other directions the outlook is more than usually favourable. An almost cordial feeling between France and Germany is indicated by the Kaiser's courtesy to a French General the other day, and the relaxing of the Alsace-Lorraine regulations. These things show, so far as the present goes, that the situation is not so bad as it was at first.

It is much better able to contribute to open taxation than at the time of the Crimean war, when the income tax was proposed to provide for it. As the "Spectator" points out, the necessity of the sugar tax, which was expected to be increased for the year, can be readily used to increase the revenue. The amount levied from year to year, according to the exigencies of war. Through the income tax and the sugar tax the classes and the masses, in cases of emergency, may be

But the whole attitude of France lately has been singularly non-aggressive and even conciliatory. This has been shown in regard to the Moroccan incident. There have been strained relations between the Republic and that State for some time, mainly arising from differences of opinion respecting the Algerian frontier, but matters took a new turn when M. Poincaré, a French yachtman, fell a victim to the treachery of the Caid of

Upon the proper for the defense of the Empire. Therefore, has been done as the result of the Boer war, on the basis of taxation that all sections of the community, who now share more equally in the wealth of the country, shall bear in fair proportion the cost of its protection. This seems a rational enough development of its system of taxation to the altered circumstances of society.

SUBSIDISING THE MUNICIPALITIES

Yesterday morning the Rev. F. Tremayne Donaghy spoke for his subject, at the Pitt-street Congregational Church, on the subject of "The Church of Australia." He said, "The Church of Australia is a United Congregational Church." If, he said, a union were to be formed in Australia, he would favour one between the Congregational and Presbyterian Churches to form a "Free Church of Australia."

Generally the persons suffering from smallpox in the quarantine hospital are doing well. All the patients from the Cliffriga are convalescent. One of the three of this disease from the Ormeau were released.

The Keddams tribe some little time back, France acted with her old-time spirit in a matter, and promptly sent a couple of cruisers to satisfy her. By these measures the Sultan of Zanzibar has been put in a position, and he undertook to make reparation for the murder and settle the frontier question. He also promised to send a mission to Paris. It does not appear that this has been done, but a Moorish mission to England waited on the King last week and expressed

We have every sympathy with the representatives of the forty odd municipalities who asked the Premier on Friday for a subsidy. The municipal councils have a great deal to do and they have very little money to do it with. It is a very bad fashion in some quarters to accuse Aldermen and Municipal Corporations of extravagance and of unnecessary riders and of undue expense in the discharge of such homely but important work as the maintenance of the roads

The clerk in charge of the Department of Labour and Industry (Mr. Clegg) has composed a reply to the letter from the Sultan of the United Arab Emirates. The King's diplomatic answer does not suggest that any active interference can be expected, but in other circumstances France would quickly resent the action of the Moorish Court in making this implied appeal. We learn by cable that the position at the Sultan's court is not so favourable to the French as it once was. The French Government does not seem disposed to encourage inflammatory sentiments on the subject. Two prominent Paris journals declare that the Sultan's desire that "no relations should be established between the country and parties in proper order, and the preservation of the public health by insisting on the observance of the sanitary law. But, for the moment, the French Government will not be charged now with want of care for the pressing interests of the municipalities under their charge. Aldermen, however, are hampered by the lack of money, and they constantly feel themselves obliged to seek aid from the State Treasury. This is not a position in which the Government can be expected to take the first duties of the State. The

A Moorish incident is closed unless fresh incidents arise. There are serious possibilities in the situation, of course, but at present there appears no ground for apprehension.

THE PRINCIPLES OF TAXATION.

It may be safely said that no British budget speech delivered in England for many years past has caused such widespread discussion as that made in April by Sir Michael Foster, when he was Premier of the United Kingdom. It was the passing of a measure aimed at the possible improvement of the position of municipalities. Party considerations do not enter into this matter at all, and Mr. See used to have suspected that he would be accused of bribery and corruption if he made a favourable reply to the request of the deputation. Whether he or another Premier during next Parliament, as a measure must be introduced and passed, it is not right that aldermen should have to Early developments are likely to center about an increase of population in the settlement area of the Sydney Harbour, and the question of the standard of living of the people of the island, and of increasing the availability of seemingly alienated portions of that area.

The writs for the State elections were issued on Saturday. They will be returnable on July 17.

On Sunday, the 13th inst., the Government was working in the Highways Department mine, the change room, which occupies the smithy, caught fire. The structure was burned down, and the clothes of all the men on duty were destroyed.

THE FOREIGN OUTLOOK.

The developments of the foreign outlook have disclosed some features of special interest lately. Lord Cranborne's remarks in

The House of Commons respecting German action in Shanghai seemed at one time to point to a rather serious possibility of a rift between the two nations, but the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs being careful to insist, in his reply to a deputation from the Chamber of Commerce, on the necessity of avoiding international "wagger." Great Britain, he said, is securing full opportunities in China, and the case of Russia was indicated as a precedent for the Chinese to view on a level, "the right has been attended in the past with no measure of success. The question regarding Shanghai presents some peculiar features. One of the principal treaty ports, the British, German, and French there enjoyed territorial rights only in the form of extrajurisdictional consular and business purposes. During the Boxer troubles there was reason to think that the native population was assuming, or about to assume, an offensive attitude, and the presence of European ships prejudiced the Continental bounty system. People who live by taxing other people have always keener susceptibilities to adverse influences than those who depend on their own exertions and do no wrong to anyone. Only in the event of a differential duty being made in favour of cane sugar produced in the United States under better conditions, can the Continental beet manufacturers have any reason to fear that their industry will be prejudiced. As there has been no intimation of and satisfactorily settled. The "Times," which is unusually well-informed as to what is going on in China, is evidently distrustful of this. It is unable to understand German action in this matter, our cables tell us, unless it is intended as a stepping-stone to political claims which otherwise would be inadmissible. This view, however, only confirms the deep conviction that a good deal of mutual suspicion and conflict of interest is going on among the Powers in China. The aggressive ele-

THE ISSUE OF THE WRITS

The writs for the elections were issued on Saturday, the 20th inst., from the Chief Secretary's Department, the returning officers throughout the State, and the "Gazette" was published giving official intimation of the fact, and also setting out the polling place for each district. It has several times been unofficially stated that in all probability the date of return of the writs would be July 17, but until the "Gazette" is published, it is impossible to say.

was published on Saturday the official proclamation had not been made. However, the date mentioned is the one for the return of the writs. It also notified that the Lieutenant-Governor, with advice of the Executive Council, has appointed Sydney to be a polling place for the following electorates: Albany, Armidale, The Bathurst, Bourke, Condobolin, Dubbo, Glen Innes, Hay, Hume, Liverpool, Manaro, Moree, Mudgee, The Rumbidgee, Queanbeyan, Tainworth, Tentford, and Wagga. Sydney is also a polling place for the suburban electorates, as also for Hyde and Le Liberal candidates who are submitting to the decision of the Liberal Association are Messrs. W. Austen W. Oakes, and G. H. Childers. Exhaustive investigation has been made with regard to the strength of these candidates, and a decision will be arrived at to-day. We are informed that whoever is chosen a victory is to be gained if it will be necessary for traders to vote for the selected candidate.

BALMAIN BRANCH.

A special meeting of the Balmain branch of New South Wales Alliance was held at the room Darling-street, on Thursday last, Mr. A. Goss presiding. The principal business was the selection of candidates in each of the Balmain electorates in the interests of the alliance. Balmain North was dealt with, and an exhaustive ballot resulted in the selection of Mr. W. C. Macdonnell.

ELECTION NOTES.

Mr. See, the Premier, left for Grafton by train on Saturday evening, and will probably be in town for more than a week.

Mr. John Hughes, solicitor, is standing as independent candidate for the Eligh Division. An auxiliary meeting of his friends and supporters to be held to-night at the Rose and Crown, William and Crown streets.

Alderman L. B. Cohen, the selected Minister candidate for Annandale, speaks to-night at H. Town Hall East, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. George J. Martin, of the Progressive clation, has, in response to inquiries, been of good support from the Waverley electors has, however, at the wish of his party, retired the contest in favour of Colonel O'Leary.

Mr. Thomas Jessop's committee met at the militia rooms, Waverley, on Saturday evening completed arrangements for a thorough canvass electors. The programme for the evening was electoral. The evening nature. The candidate address the electors at Charing Cross on Tu address, and at the Waverley Hall on Thursday.

Mr. T. McFadden has entered the lists as a candidate for the Richmond, where Mr. Pyle is a regular member, is standing as independent.

Mr. Sparks, the secretary of the Progressive Union, states that his organization is gratified to see a series of candidates in running who are anxious that their selection is giving. They desire as without delay, and have devoted themselves to the assistance of selected candidates.
